PROTESTS AGAINST THE LEASING BILL

Governor Ammons of Colorado Sends Telegram to Chairman of Committee.

DENVER, April 4.-Governor Ammons tonight sent a telegram to Representative Scott Ferris at Washington, chairman of the public lands committee of the house of representatives, protesting in the name of the majority of the people of Colorado against the proposed bill providing for federal leasing of mineralradium-lands in Colorado. In the message the governor said:

Vast majority of Colorado people are opposed to federal leasing of mineral lands. A large proportion of our territory and most of some countles are at present valuable only for minerals and are most expensive to adminster. To relieve mineral lands of general taxes would seriously cripple the state and local institutions and would add to handicap of long freight hands for agricultural products. If congress fears monopolization, let it fix the limit of ownership or control and punish violation by reversion of title to the state.

Our people are unable to travel 2000 miles to these hearings. Congressman Taylor, a member of the mines and mining and public lands committees, who was chosen largely on this very issue, correctly represents the people of the state, and I sin-this very issue correctly represents the people of the state, and I sincerely hope will be heeded on this subject. Our legislature, all business and other organizations, so far as I know, have gone on record against this and similar measures.

account of the added beauty of the structure, not merely on account of pride in using home materials, but it will be approved from the utilitarian viewpoint, because it has meant the establishment of new industries in stone working, which will be permanent and will add to the commercial prosperity of the state.

It should also be pointed out that the cost of the capitol will be increased by lack of ground. The original site was too small. We have already acquired the adjacent ground on the east, to the edge of the canyon, and it will be necessary to acquire additional ground on the west in order to provide space for the landscape gardening and parking that will be absolutely essential as an appropriate setting for this magnicent building.

The members of the capitol commission also represent the various industries of the state, and have brought to the task the experience and the ideals that they have gained in the industries upon which Utah has depended in the past, and upon which she will continue to depend in the future.

Industry Makes Greatness.

Industry Makes Greatness.

But, after all, it is not industries, but industry, that makes greatness. Truly, "Genius is mainly an affair of energy," and no matter if we had all the wealth of the world within the borders of our state, without the industry and energy to develop them we should have no industries, no progress, no greatness. The bee hive, symbol of industry, which is emblazoned upon the great seal of the state, is the key to Utah's future.

is the key to Utah's future.

The meeting was presided over by John K. Hardy. The Rev Elmer I. Goshen delivered the invocation. Benediction was said by Bishop Laurence Scanlan. One of the features of the programme was the music furnished by the State Industrial school band. These young boys have had excellent training and their music was excellent. Present on the speakers' stand were members of the capitol commission, members of the governor's staff, regular army officers stationed in the city, and the representatives of James Stewart & Co., contractors of the capitol.

GREAT NUMBERS OUT OF WORK IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA April 4.—The Austrian government has temporarily suspended in Galicia the severe restrictions recently imposed against emigration. This action has been taken owing to the great increase in unemployment, which has resulted in widespread destitution. Great numbers, both in town and in country, are on the verge of starvation. The efforts of the authorities to ameliorate the distress by means of public works have proven inadequate.

The frontier gendarmeric have been instructed to exercise the utmost leniency in the examination of the passports of young men intent upon reaching America, even though military service has not been performed.

It is estimated that the normal emigration from Galicia has more than doubled.
